Read the passage. Use the visualize strategy to help form pictures in your mind.

River Rescue

Enid lived in the jungle with her family and friends. Her home had tall green trees, cool blue streams, and bright and beautiful flowers. It had enough tasty, fresh fruit to last forever.

The only thing Enid loved and adored more than her jungle home was reading. She read stories about fish. She read stories about dogs. She read stories about castles in France. Sometimes her friends told her that she read too much.

“Enid! You always have your trunk in a book! Your eyes will start to ache if you read too much,” her friend Mabel would say. “Come swimming instead.”

“I’ll swim later. I’m reading about a girl with ruby red slippers.”

Every evening after dinner, Enid would try to read her favorite stories to her friends. They would listen for a little while, but one of them would always say, “Hearing stories isn’t fun! Let’s go play!”

Enid kept reading. She hoped she would inspire her friends to read.

One day, after a heavy rain, Enid was trying to read a story about a beaver building a dam. In the middle of chapter 12, she heard a cry for help.

Books are a good way to become educated. However, even Enid would put a book down if someone needed her help.

“Help!” said the small, meek voice. It came from the river’s edge.

“I know that voice!” said Enid. “It’s my friend Mabel!”
Enid ran toward Mabel’s voice. When she reached the river’s edge she was surprised and shocked by what she saw. The usually calm, flat, clear water was now dark and swirling with splashing white waves. On the other shore on the opposite side of the river was tiny Mabel.

“Enid. What can we do?” asked her friend Harold. “We were about to play in the river like we always do. Mabel was on the other side of the river about to pick some fruit for lunch. Then it happened! The river got deeper and wider all of a sudden. It was magic.”

“It wasn’t magic,” said Enid. “It is a flood. I read about it. Sometimes when it rains too much like it did today, rivers can swell and get bigger without a warning.”

“What can we do to help Mabel?” asked Harold. “Did you also read about something to help when rivers get too big?”

Enid thought about her book about the beaver’s dam. “Yes! We can build a dam. A dam is like a wall in the river. It slows down the water. When it slows down, Mabel can cross back to us safely.”

“How do we make a dam?” asked Harold.

“Like this,” said Enid. She rolled round, gray stones toward the river, slowly building a wall in the water. Her friends began helping her, assisting Enid in building the dam. Soon, it was complete and the water slowed. Mabel was able to cross back.

After that day, Enid’s friends were satisfied to read books with her and listen to her stories.
A. Reread the passage and answer the questions.

1. What do Enid’s actions in the first half of the story tell you about her?

2. Why do you think Enid wants her friends to read and listen to stories?

3. A character’s actions make the events in a story happen. If Enid did not like reading, how would the story be different?

B. Work with a partner. Read the passage aloud. Pay attention to expression. Stop after one minute. Fill out the chart.

The Bookworm’s Big Surprise

“You’re not really a bookworm,” the caterpillars called to the bookworm. “You’re a caterpillar like us! Come with us. It’s time for us to go spin our cocoons! We’re going to turn into butterflies.”

Shocked, the bookworm said, “I want to stay and munch on my books.”

“Butterflies can munch on books too!” the caterpillars said. “You don’t have to be a bookworm to like books!”

Answer the questions about the text.

1. How do you know this text is a fantasy?

2. Why does the bookworm at first not want to change?

3. What is the lesson of this text?

4. A fantasy may have an illustration. How might an illustration show that this text is a fantasy?
Read each passage. Underline the synonym that means about the same thing as each word in bold. Then write the meaning of the word in bold on the line.

1. I was excited to go to the country and pick apples with my family. I have always adored making pies and muffins with fresh apples. It turns out my sister is crazy about apples, too. She picked twice as many apples as I did!

2. When people first meet me, they think that I am meek. However, they soon change their minds. When I start telling jokes and stories they laugh. Then they see that I’m really not the quiet person they thought I was.

3. Our class was shocked when we walked into the room on Friday. Our teacher was throwing us a party! Nobody even knew about it. Even though we were all stunned, we all sure had a lot of fun.

4. My family says that I am just the opposite of my sister. My favorite subject is art. Her favorite subject is math. She wants to have a cat for a pet. I want to find the perfect dog. We may be completely different from each other, but we are still best friends.
A. Circle the word that has a short a or a short i vowel sound. Then write it on the line to complete the sentence.

1. I need a _____________ for my letter.
   box   stamp   pen

2. We saw the man ______________ his bus.
   drive   miss   get

3. How far can you ______________ the ball?
   kick   throw   take

4. The _______________ will march in the parade.
   mayor   team   band

B. Words in the same word family have a common spelling pattern. Sort the words in the box by placing them in the correct word family.

   glad   click   spill   stand   bill   hand camp   ramp   mad   pink   stick   think

   1. -ill
   2. -and
   3. -amp
   4. -ink
   5. -ad
   6. -ick
Evidence is details and examples from a text that support a writer’s opinion. This student wrote his or her opinion on whether or not the author gave enough information to reveal that it was Enid’s love of reading that made the story events happen.

Topic sentence
In “River Rescue,” I think the author does a good job showing how Enid’s love of reading saves the day.

Evidence
In the story, the author says that Enid loves to read.
Her friend, Mabel, would rather play. Mabel does not think reading is important. One day, Mabel gets trapped in a flood. Enid reads how to help in a book. She is the only one who knows what to do. Enid is a hero! The author shows that because of Enid’s love of reading she was about to save her friend.

Giving Thanks

Tom was happy because it was the last day before Thanksgiving weekend. He grabbed his lunch from his kitchen table and went to school. In the lunchroom after morning classes, he sat next to Ana, a new student from India. He had never talked to her before.

“Are you excited for the long weekend?” he asked.

“Of course,” she said. “But why do we have these days off?”

“Thanksgiving, of course!” Tom said. “Do you know what it is?”

“No, we don’t have it where I am from,” she said.

Thanksgiving in America

“Oh, Thanksgiving is so much fun,” Tom said. “We get to spend precious time with family and friends. First, we have a big feast with turkey, mashed potatoes, and pie. After the feast, I go outside and play football with my brothers.”

“But why do you have this tradition?” she asked.

“It’s to remind everyone to give thanks for our food and everything from the past year,” he said. “I learned in Ms. Boone’s class that the first Thanksgiving was way back in 1621 between the English Colonists and Native Americans.”
Thanksgiving in India

“Wow, that sounds great,” said Ana. “In my country we also give thanks. We do it in a different way.”

“Really?” Tom said. “How?”

“I am from a place in India called Tamil Nadu,” she said. “In January, we celebrate something called Pongal.”

“Pongal? What does that mean?” Tom asked.

“It’s an Indian dish,” she said. “During the Pongal festival, food is cooked in pots until it boils and spills over. It is a symbol of good times for us.”

“Wow,” Tom said. “How do you celebrate?”

“First, we give thanks to the rain and sun for help with farming. We even thank the cattle,” said Ana. “Then we throw away old things and wear new clothes. We eat food and spend time with family.”

“I thought that the United States was the only country that had a holiday like Thanksgiving,” Tom said. “I guess I was wrong.”

“Yes, there are many types of harvest festivals all over the world where people give thanks for food and crops,” she said.

“I guess we all have a lot to be thankful for,” he said, and they both agreed.
A. Reread the passage and answer the questions.

1. In paragraph six, what is the first thing that Tom does on Thanksgiving?

2. What is the next thing that Tom does on Thanksgiving?

3. In the passage, find another example of sequence under the head Thanksgiving in India. What is the first thing that happens in this example?

A Family Tradition

My mother asked, “How do you say good-bye to your lola, Jomar?” Lola is the Filipino word for “grandmother.”

“Please remind me,” I said.

“In the Philippines,” my mother explained, “we have a tradition called Mano Po. When you say ‘hello’ or ‘good-bye’ to your elders, you touch their right hand to your forehead. It is a sign of respect.”

I touched my lola’s hand to my forehead. “Mano Po, Lola!” I said.

Joseph Bruchac

Growing Up Near Mountains

Joseph Bruchac grew up in the mountains of New York. He lived with his grandmother and grandfather. Young Joseph loved to go with his grandfather everywhere he went. His grandfather showed him how to walk softly through the woods and how to fish in the lakes and rivers.

As a child, Joseph spent time working in his grandparents’ store. When he made mistakes, his grandfather would never shout or yell at him. Instead, he would talk to Joseph about what had happened. That way Joseph could know how to do better the next time. During the winter, farmers would come to the store. They would sit around the stove and tell Joseph stories.

While growing up, Joseph loved to read and write. Joseph’s grandmother kept bookshelves in the house full of books. There was always plenty to read. He liked to read storybooks about animals. He also liked reading poetry. He even wrote some poems of his own! One time, he wrote a poem for his teacher. She was very proud.
Abenaki Storyteller

Joseph’s grandfather was an Abenaki Native American. Joseph became interested in stories told by the Abenaki. When he was in college, Joseph would sometimes visit Native American elders. He would listen to them tell stories. These stories were fun to listen to. But they also taught great lessons about life. Later, Joseph started to have children of his own. He wrote down the stories he heard. Then he read them to his two sons. Soon after that, Joseph began to write children’s books. These books told the stories of the Abenaki and other Native American peoples.

Helping Others

In the fourth grade, Joseph’s teacher told him, “Whatever you want to do, you should do it.” Joseph wanted to write and help others. And that’s just what he did. First, he began to write stories. These stories taught children about being kind. They also taught children to care for the Earth. Then, Joseph went to schools all over the United States. He read his stories to children. Now, Joseph helps other writers share their stories.

Today, Joseph spends time in his garden. He has gardens all around his house. The inside of his house is full of many plants. Joseph has been all over the world. But he still lives in the hometown where he grew up. “It is a place I love,” says Joseph. He still likes to walk through the woods and mountains. Every day he gets ideas for brand-new stories.
A. Reread the passage and answer the questions.

1. What happened during the winter at Joseph’s grandparents’ store?

2. What happened next after Joseph read stories to his sons?

3. Reread the fifth paragraph. What did Joseph do after he began to write stories?

During World War II, I was a soldier and fought battles in the Marshall Islands and on Iwo Jima in the Pacific Ocean. I was one of the Navajo code talkers. The code talkers used the language of the Navajo people to send messages to the troops. The enemy didn’t know this language and couldn’t read our code. Our work helped the United States win many battles. After the war, I taught people about Navajo language and culture.

Victor Ochoa’s New Idea

Have you ever made something that no one else had made before? It is not an easy thing to do. People who make something new are called inventors. They look around and see what can be made better and then they do it! Victor Ochoa was one of those people. He made many things. One of them was a flying machine. Victor looked at birds to get his ideas. He wanted to learn everything about how birds flew.

Many Jobs

Victor was born in Mexico in 1850 and grew up in Texas. He lived all over the United States. He loved to work with writers. He wrote for newspapers. He even started two new papers. He worked hard and never gave up, no matter how hard the job was.

A New Plane

Victor’s mind was a motor that never turned off. He was always thinking of new ways to make life better. In 1908, he was thinking about the way that birds fly. He thought that he could make a plane that flew like a bird. So he set to work.
The center of the plane was made of two bikes set next to each other. It looked a little like a car. It had a small motor that sat between the two bikes. The back was shaped like a bird’s tail. The wings were made of canvas and steel pipes. What made this plane different was that the wings could be folded down just like a bird’s wings. This was so it could be put in a small shed or barn. This way, everyone could keep a plane at a house or on a farm.

Victor started a company that would make this new plane. He asked the Navy to use his new plane. He wrote the Navy a letter telling them why he thought his plane would be just what they needed. He worked very hard to make his plane work. He worked on it for over twenty years. No one knows if it ever flew.

Other New Ideas

Victor did not let this problem keep him from making other things. Making new things from new ideas was the blood in his veins. He made a new pen that held its own ink. Another thing he came up with was a motor that worked both forward and backward.

Never Give Up

Victor was a spinning top. He was always making new things. He wanted to help other people with his ideas. Not all of his ideas worked. No one who tries something new is successful every time, though. The important part is to keep trying. Victor Ochoa was someone who never stopped trying.
A. Reread the passage and answer the questions.

Building a Landmark

Have you ever made a sand castle? Maybe you’ve built something in the snow or dirt. Have you thought that something you made on land would last for a long time, though? In Ohio there are Native American mounds on the land. These mounds have been there for thousands of years. The Ohio mounds act as landmarks, or important sites. They also help us understand our country’s history.

Native American tribes created Ohio’s mounds. Today, there are over 70 mounds left. People visit them each year. One of these mounds is called Serpent Mound. It is 1,370 feet long. The mound looks like a big snake. This is the world’s longest burial mound! Objects from other tribes are in Serpent Mound. This makes researchers think that many tribes made the mound. A lot of tribes might have made this one mound to share.

The mounds are different shapes. Miamisburg Mound is shaped like a cone. It is the largest cone mound in Ohio. It is believed that the Adena tribe made this mound. There are 116 steps. Visitors can climb them to the top.
How did the tribes make these mounds? At Fort Ancient Mounds, people used clam shells to dig the dirt. They also used sticks. They carried the dirt for the mounds in baskets. The baskets weighed about 40 pounds. Do you know why a tribe would want to build these mounds? Some people say they were used as a calendar. The mounds have walls that total 18,000 feet in length. This means carrying dirt to build them was a lot of hard work.

The Newark Earthworks are geometric mounds. They are the world’s largest set like this. Researchers think these mounds were used to study stars. They might have been used for gatherings, too.

Cultures leave behind stories. Some stories are in books. Some are in artwork. In Ohio, Native American tribes left behind mounds. Not all questions about the mounds have been answered. But these landmarks have still helped us learn more of our country’s history.

Social and Sacred Places

Some researchers think that the Ohio River Valley mounds were used for social reasons. Others think they were for ceremonial reasons. Today, you can visit them. Maybe you can come up with your own answer of how the mounds were used.

The Lincoln Memorial

The architect Henry Bacon had a very specific idea of what he wanted when he designed the Lincoln Memorial. He had studied architecture in Europe and was very impressed with the buildings of ancient Greece. He wanted his memorial to remind people of the city of Athens in Greece, the birthplace of democracy. That way, people who saw the memorial would remember the ancient tradition of democracy that Abraham Lincoln fought to keep alive.

The Gettysburg Address is...

- a speech given by Abraham Lincoln on November 19, 1863, during the Civil War.
- written on the south wall of the Lincoln Memorial.
- dedicated to the soldiers who fought and died at the Battle of Gettysburg, so “that government of the people, by the people, and for the people, shall not perish from the earth.”

Answer the questions about the text.

1. How can you tell that this is informational text?

2. What text feature is included? How does it relate to the main topic?

3. What did Henry Bacon want the Lincoln Memorial to remind people of?

Why People and Birds Are Friends

A long time ago, people of the world were far apart. It was easier to get lost then. People and animals did not talk to each other. It was easier that way. But things change.

Jungles are enormous. It is easy to lose your way and feel tiny. This is what happened to two brothers on a hunting trip.

They planned to be gone for two days. But five days later, they were lost. They were farther from home than they had ever been.

Every day they would walk in one direction. They thought it would take them home. Every day they would stop when it got dark. But they would be no closer to being found by anyone.

Luckily, they knew how to camp. They also knew how to find food and firewood. The older brother went to find firewood, and the younger brother went to gather food and water. He looked for more than an hour. But he could not find anything to feed his brother and himself. He was very tired, so he sat down to rest.

The young boy sat, listening to the warm wind in the leaves. He noticed a bird in the tree above him. He watched as it jumped about. Then he heard a voice.

“I know where your parents are! I know where your parents are!”
The boy looked around to see who was talking to him. He didn’t see anyone. He was confused. He heard the words again. In a moment, he understood that the bird was talking to him!

The young boy stared at the bird for a minute. Then he said, “Can you really help my brother and me get home?”

The bird hopped from one branch to the next. She said, “Yes, I can. I know the village you live in. I can take you back there. I only ask for something in return: I require three insects to eat. That will make me strong enough to guide you home.”

The young boy quickly agreed to feed the bird. He ran back to his camp as fast as he could. He found his brother sitting in front of the fire. He told his brother about the bird. His brother did not believe him at first. But finally he slowly agreed to go with the boy to meet the talking bird.

When they found the bird again, it repeated the offer to the older boy. He also immediately agreed. The boys went to find insects for the bird. It waited patiently on a tree branch. They found several insects. The bird chose a few and gulfed them down, one, two, three! “We leave in the morning,” she said.

The next morning, the boys followed the bird home. It took several days. The bird always waited for the boys to catch up before flying ahead. When they finally got home, the boys’ parents were very happy to see them. The family promised that they and their children’s children would always feed hungry birds. That is why birds sing to humans, and humans feed birds.

The Ant and the Dove

One day, an ant was drinking water from a stream. Suddenly, he slipped and fell into the water. A dove was sitting in a nearby tree and saw the ant drowning. She pulled a leaf from the tree and dropped it into the water. The ant climbed onto the leaf and floated to the shore.

The next day, the ant saw a hunter sneaking up behind the dove with a net. The dove did not see the hunter. The ant crept up and bit the hunter on the foot. The hunter shouted in pain and dropped his net. The dove heard the shout and flew to safety.

Answer the questions about the text.

Evidence is details and examples from a text that support a writer’s ideas. The student who wrote the paragraph below found text evidence that shows how the author uses what the characters do and say to share the theme of this folktale.

In “Why People and Birds are Friends,” the author uses what the characters do and say to share the theme about helping. At the beginning of the story, the brothers were lost and hungry. Then a bird says she will show them the way home if they feed her. The boys feed the bird, and the bird takes the brothers home. The author uses how the brothers and the bird help each other to share the message that when we help others, they often help us in return.

A Dream to the West

Lan was eight years old in 1849. Life at home in China was tough, and Yao, Lan’s father, worked hard to put food on the table and make a good life for his family.

Good news from the West gave hope. Word had spread that people were getting rich finding gold in America, and Yao knew that it was time to try for a better life. He made the trip by himself at first. But after a few months, with a loan from family, Lan and her mother were joining him.

Lan was as white as a ghost. “I’m scared, Mommy,” she said. “I only know my friends and family here in China, and I don’t even speak English.”

“You’ll settle in,” her mom said. “Daddy will welcome us.”

The Golden Mountain

“Daddy!” Lan came running to her father and gave him a big hug. They took a long wagon trip in from the port in California to where gold was being found.

“Are they really finding gold here?” Lan asked along the way. “Some people have struck it rich!” Yao said. “They call the area ‘Gold Mountain.’”

The Gold Rush swept across America like wildfire when gold was found in 1848. Now people from other countries immigrated.
“And what about our family in China?” she asked. “I’m going to miss them.”

“I will send them money from my pay,” he said. “Maybe one day they can join us here.”

Many others did not have the money to send for their families. Lan knew she was lucky.

A New Life

Yao lived in a community with other Chinese people. When they arrived, Lan met Yao’s friend, Chen, and Chen’s daughter, Li. They walked around the village and talked.

“This is where we live and eat,” Li said pointing. “And here is where we gather to talk.”

Lan inspected the area. “Wow, I didn’t know this many Chinese people lived here. They even speak Chinese!”

“Yes, we have built a nice place to live,” Yao said. “But where is the mine that you work in, Daddy?” she asked.

“I don’t work as a miner anymore, Lan,” he said. “The hours were long, and we were not finding any gold. I now work as a shoemaker.”

Lan knew life would not be the same, but she had hope. She looked around. The future was as open as the land.

“I’m just happy we’re together,” Lan said.

Comprehension and Fluency

Read the passage. Use the reread strategy to make sure you understand the text.

Express Yourself

Do you tell friends who you think the best singer is? Do you wear a T-shirt for a team you like? This may not seem unusual. It is your right to say what you think. Yet, there have been people who have had to prove their freedom of speech.

Speak Your Mind

Freedom of speech is the right to tell what you think. This is a right in the Constitution. Even if other people do not agree, you should still have the right to say what you think.

To speak your thoughts does not just mean saying them. It can mean what you do. There were students in 1969 who “spoke” with actions. America was at war then. The students did not like the war. They wanted to show how they felt. So they wore black armbands.

Some people did not like the bands. The students went to court. This case was called Tinker v. Des Moines. The court said that the students could wear the bands to school. It was their freedom of speech. The students could wear the bands even if others disagreed.
Are There Limits?

There are times when free speech is not allowed. If telling your beliefs is unsafe to others, it is unprotected by the Constitution. What if you shout “fire”? If there is not a fire, this is not free speech. You are causing trouble. People might get hurt.

The government will not allow this. A person who does this will be punished. This happened in 1919. The case was called Schenck v. United States.

When our country was new and people were given freedom of speech, it was good. They were independent. They could speak their minds. There have been times when free speech has hurt people. The government can help define free speech by how people use it.

Free speech is your right. Yet, if people get hurt, it is not allowed. This means that people make the government work by using their free speech. They speak their beliefs. They do this within the rules of the law. Sometimes, the government has to redefine how people use this freedom.

Because of free speech you can make your beliefs known. People will continue to help define the rules of government by reviewing their rights.

Read the passage. Use the reread strategy to make sure you understand the text.

The Sound of Elephants

A Love of Sounds

Katy Payne loves to listen to all kinds of sounds. She loves to listen to music, of course. But mostly, she listens to animals. And she has spent most of her life doing it. By listening to them she has helped them live on.

Katy first studied whales and the wonderful sounds they make under the water. Some people call them “whale songs.” They sound like strange music. Katy knew that elephants were like whales in some ways. They were both large creatures. And they both cared for their young. Katy wanted to study elephants, too.

Hidden Sounds

Katy went to a zoo to see and hear the elephants. She watched and listened. She liked to hear the sounds they made. There were loud sounds and soft sounds. They hummed and made trumpet sounds. The sounds made Katy think of whale songs. She knew that whales sometimes made sounds that she could not hear. That gave Katy a great idea. What if elephants make hidden sounds too? She went to find out.
First, Katy taped the sounds of elephants. Then she took the tapes to a lab. She used a computer to make pictures of the sound waves. The pictures showed sounds that Katy could not hear. The elephants were making hidden sounds! No one had ever seen hidden sounds from elephants. Katy had found something special.

Helping by Hearing

Katy became worried about elephants. People and elephants do not always live well near each other. Sometimes elephants eat people’s crops, and people get angry. Sometimes careless people build homes on land that elephants use. It is hard for these elephants to survive. Katy wanted the two to be able to live near each other.

Katy started a project with some friends. They listen to the sounds of elephants to get to know them better. This helps people know more. They are hopeful that the more people understand elephants, the more they will want to help.

Katy also uses the sounds to count the elephants. She has found that there are fewer now than there used to be. Some people have heard about this. They have started helpful projects of their own. Now more people are helping elephants. And it’s all because of good people like Katy Payne!
A. Reread the passage and answer the questions.

Evidence is details and examples from a text that support a writer’s opinion. This student wrote about whether or not the author uses details to support her point of view that Katy Payne is the reason more people are helping elephants.

Topic sentence → In “The Sound of Elephants,” the author uses details to support her point of view that Katy Payne’s work is helping elephants survive. Katy Evidence → studied elephants and discovered that they make hidden sounds. The author says that Katy found something special. Katy started a project that helped people understand elephants better. The author thinks that because of Katy’s discovery more people are interested in helping elephants. The author uses details to support her point of view. I agree. Katy’s discovery turned into a way to get more people involved with helping elephants.

Concluding statement →

Write about a text you read. Find text evidence to support your opinion about the author’s point of view. Then write about how your point of view compares with the author’s.

Lawrence was fascinated as he watched the crew at the construction site in town. A new office building was being built, and Lawrence had been an ________________ all summer.

“Today’s the day it is finally done,” he told his friend Walter, standing next to him.

“Wow!” said Walter. “It’s been so long.”

They gazed up at the tall glass building. “Yes, when I first saw them knocking the old building down with a wrecking ball, I thought the ball would ________________ right off the brick!” Lawrence said. “But that was just the beginning of the fun.”

Lawrence loved to ________________ himself wearing a hard hat, hammering, and putting up walls. He admired the skill of the workers and the tools they used. “The ________________ of all of those tools must have been very smart,” he said. “They are all so useful.”

“And look at the results,” Walter said. “The building is beautiful.”

“Yes it is,” Lawrence said as he smiled. “Maybe one day, I’ll be out there helping.”

Evidence is details and examples from a text that support a writer’s ideas. This student wrote about how the author’s choice of words helps us understand what the narrator thinks about learning to read.

In “Learning the Read,” the author chooses words that help us understand what the narrator thinks about learning to read. The narrator uses the words “letter soup” to describe reading. When I think about letter soup, I think about letters floating all over the place in no order. Then the narrator learns to read and says that the “letters let themselves be led into lines.” That means the letters are now words. I read that reading brings the whole world into the narrator’s open hands. The author chooses words that help me understand what the narrator thinks about learning to read.

How Zebras Got Their Stripes

This story happened a long time ago in Africa. One day, Baboon, who was very fierce, decided to leave the jungle tree where he lived. He wanted to live next to the river. He was so mean that he told all the other animals that the land belonged to him. Baboon stated he was the only one allowed to drink from the river.

The animals were upset. They were sad because they needed water to survive. But all of them were afraid of Baboon. He had a big head with thick eyebrows and long teeth. He showed his teeth every chance he got to scare the other animals. They didn’t know what to do.

Zebra was young and brave. He was fearless and handsome in his pure white coat. In the old days, zebras had all white coats. Zebra said to the other animals, “I am not afraid of Baboon. I will tell him we are going to drink from the river.” The next day, Zebra met with Baboon, but Baboon refused to talk to Zebra. So Zebra challenged Baboon to a fight. Baboon laughed. It had been a long time since he had lost a fight.

They agreed that the loser of the fight would have to leave the jungle and river. He would have to live on the barren hill. The empty hill was not a place anyone wanted to live. They would meet the next morning in Baboon’s yard next to the river.
The next day, Zebra came to Baboon’s yard. Baboon had built a bonfire. Zebra’s white coat glowed in the sun. It looked like Zebra was lit from inside his body. All the animals came to watch the fight. They knew that it would be difficult to beat Baboon.

Baboon and Zebra were both strong and used all of their skills. They knew what they were good at. Zebra used his powerful legs to run at Baboon. But Baboon was very swift. He used his quickness to jump out of Zebra’s way. Before Zebra could stop, he was suddenly close to the bonfire. He was so close that the heat from the fire began to burn him.

Zebra turned around and kicked Baboon over the river and onto the empty hill. He wasn’t injured, but his pride was hurt. He knew he had lost. The animals could drink from the river.

Zebra won, but he was left with marks. The fire had burned long black stripes on his white coat. From that day on, all zebras had black stripes and were proud of them. They were a symbol that Zebra had fought and won to keep water free for all animals.

How Bear Lost His Tail

Long ago, Bear had a long, shiny tail. He was proud of his tail and bragged, “No other tail in the forest can compare with mine!”

Fox got tired of Bear’s bragging. One winter day, Fox went to a frozen lake and sat by a hole in the ice. When he heard Bear coming, Fox said loudly to himself, “My tail just isn’t shiny enough to catch that juicy fish under the ice.” Then he hid behind a tree.

“My shiny tail could catch that fish!” Bear thought, licking his lips. He dipped his tail into the icy water. While waiting, Bear fell asleep.

Fox watched Bear sleep. Then Fox crept up behind him and shouted as loud as he could, “Wake up, Bear! The fish is biting your tail!” Bear woke with such a start that his frozen tail snapped clean off.

A Letter to Helen Keller

Dear Ms. Keller,

My name is Amelia Grant. I live in Nome, TX, where my daddy runs an oil factory. I was born in the year 1900, so I am now twelve years old. When I was eight, I was out near one of the oil wells. There was a huge explosion. I was real close to it. As a result, I lost most of my hearing.

A lot has changed for me since then. For one, I cannot hear music in the same way. I used to love listening to my mother sing songs. When I first lost my hearing, I was sad that I would never again hear my mother sing. But now I put my ear to her chest. I can feel the vibrations of her voice. Now, I feel music instead of hearing it.

Also, I have to go to a different school a long stretch away from our hometown. It is called Texas School for the Deaf. It is in the city of Austin, two hundred miles away from Nome. The teachers are kind, but I spend months at a time away from my family. I get to see them during holidays, but I sure do miss them.

During our last winter holiday, my daddy gave me a book you wrote, The Story of My Life. I read that when you first became deaf and blind, you had a hard time showing people what you wanted. Because of this, you would sometimes get mad and make loud noises.
Your mom and dad were frustrated. You really drove your parents up the wall! So that’s why they found a great teacher for you. Her name was Ms. Sullivan. She showed you that there was a word to describe every object and idea. Because of Ms. Sullivan, you are now able to read and write by touch.

I also read that you love to ask questions. So now, when we are learning in school, I ask lots of questions. I found out that this really helps me learn. I am learning more now than I ever did before I lost my hearing. Maybe mother is right when she says “every cloud has a silver lining.” Even when something seems really bad, a good thing can come from it.

I have a best friend in Nome. Her name is Anna Bailey. When I lost my hearing, I thought Anna might not be my friend anymore. I thought she might want to play only with people who could hear. But I was wrong. Anna stayed friends with me. She even helped me. She told me I would get used to being deaf. “It might take some time,” she said. “But you’ll find your feet.” She made me feel much better.

When I first heard about you, I was amazed. Even though you are deaf and blind, you can do almost anything! You even went to college. You are like a hero to me. I hope that one day I can visit you and we can learn more about each other.

Sincerely,
Amelia Grant

Evidence is details and examples from a text that support a writer’s opinion. This student wrote an opinion about how well the author uses signal words to show causes and effects in time order.

Topic sentence

In “A Letter to Helen Keller,” the author does a good job using signal words to show causes and effects in time order. At the beginning of the letter, Amelia writes about a huge explosion. As a result, she lost most of her hearing. The signal words help me understand that the explosion caused Amelia to lose her hearing. Amelia read about how Helen Keller asked lots of questions in school. So she asks lots of questions, too. The author’s use of signal words helped me find causes and effects in Amelia’s letter and understand the events of her life in time order.

Seeing Red

You have probably seen stars in the sky. Maybe you even saw a planet. Have you wondered what other planets are like? Others have, too. In the search to answer this question, scientists have learned a lot about Mars. Scientists will do everything they can to learn even more about Mars.

Fourth Place

Mars is the fourth planet from the sun. Earth is the third planet. Mars has a reddish color. It is called the Red Planet. It is about half the size of Earth. Earth has different types of climates. There are cold, hot, dry, and wet places. Mars is just a cold desert. Water is not a liquid there. It is frozen in the cold. Is it believable that Mars was once warm?

Red Rover

Scientists wanted to know what Mars was once like. They sent machines called rovers to find out. The first one landed on Mars in 1997. It sent images of Mars back to Earth. It let us know about the rocks and soil. These useful facts led to an answer. Scientists say Mars was once warm and wet like Earth is today.
Red Planet Plants

The rovers helped us learn about Mars. Scientists now want to send people to Mars to learn more. It would take nearly a year and a half to go there and back. This is a long way to go. People would need to bring food and water. It would be hard to go so far with enough supplies. Researchers at NASA have a solution. They want to make special plants. These plants could live on cold and icy Mars. They could be carefully grown in a greenhouse there. The plants could grow food for researchers on Mars.

If plants are grown for food on Mars, people would have to bring less food. They could have enough supplies to stay longer if food is grown there. How is this helpful? The longer researchers stay, the more they can learn about the Red Planet.

The surface of Mars is cold, rocky, and empty. It is not full of life like Earth. However, evidence shows that Mars’s climate was once like that of Earth. Research has helped us learn a lot about Mars. People might be going to Mars to learn more. Growing plants on Mars can provide food for people who are there to study the Red Planet. This could help them stay longer to learn more. Advances like these can help us truly unlock more mysteries of Mars.

The Rings of Saturn

The planet Saturn has many amazing rings. Saturn’s rings look solid from far away. However, they are made up of billions of pieces of rock and ice. Some of these pieces are as fine as dust. Others are as big as mountains. Scientists think some of the rock and ice are pieces of an old moon. This moon may have fallen out of its orbit and crashed into Saturn.

Evidence is details and examples from a text that support a writer’s ideas. This student wrote about how the author uses key details that go together to support the main idea.

In “Seeing Red,” the author uses key details that go together to support the main idea that scientists sent rovers to Mars to learn more about the planet.

Evidence

I read that scientists sent machines called rovers to learn about Mars. Rovers sent images of Mars back to Earth. Scientists learned about the rocks and soil on Mars. They learned that Mars was once warm and wet like Earth is today. The author uses key details that go together and support the main idea that rovers were sent to learn about Mars.

A Sticky Idea

Nature can inspire ideas. Take the tree frog for instance. Have you ever tried to stick a piece of tape on something after it has gathered dirt or dust? Take tape off of a surface and try to use it again. It does not stick. The tree frog may hold the solution.

A tree frog has sticky pads on its feet. The stickiness of the pads helps the frog to hold onto trees or rocks. Yet the pads do not pick up dirt. They stay clean as the frog moves around.

New Ideas

The way this frog’s foot works can be copied and used for many purposes. It can give us ideas for other inventions.

For example, think about doctors and nurses at work. They could reuse bandages used for patients if they stayed clean and sticky. A smaller bandage used at home could also be taken off and used many times.

Tire and car makers also have a use for what a tree frog’s foot can do. Material that can get a good grip and stay clean could improve tire performance. It could help cars stay on the road in bad weather.

A product like that could also make a good glue or tape. A clean adhesive that lasts long would be helpful at home and at school.
Put to the Test

Researchers tested a group of tree frogs. They placed the frogs on platforms and then slanted and moved the platforms. They put dust on the frogs’ feet. At first the research showed that these frogs lost their grip on the surface if they did not move. When they moved their feet, though, they were able to get back their hold.

How It Works

How do tree frogs’ special feet clean themselves? Their feet produce a slimy substance called mucus. This secretion is released with every step the frogs take. The old mucus stays behind with the dust and dirt. The new mucus helps the frogs’ feet stick. This process cleans their feet as they move forward.

Tree frogs’ feet also have a pattern of six-sided shapes on the bottom. The shape of the pattern is good at keeping the frogs’ pads in touch with the surface they are standing on. It also helps the mucus spread across the pad.

Studying frogs’ feet is just one way that people can find inspiration in nature. Ideas come from things all around us. No one knows what is coming next. What is your prediction?

Against the Flow

Fish can use little energy to move in the opposite direction of flowing water. They use whirlpools to help them. Whirlpools are spinning pools of water around rocks. They pull in things around them. Fish move their bodies back and forth so they are pulled from whirlpool to whirlpool. Scientists study fish to build boats that use less energy.

Whirlpools pull the fish back and forth against the flow of water called the current.

Comprehension and Fluency

Read the passage. Use the summarize strategy to be sure you understand the text.

Mississippi Steamboats

What if you want something sent from far away? The goods will travel by truck or plane. But what did people do before trucks and planes? How did things travel from far away? Two hundred years ago, goods traveled on the Mississippi River. Steamboats carried them.

What Is a Steamboat?

A steamboat is any boat powered by steam. Water is boiled and turned into steam. The steam creates a force. This force is used to power an engine. Steamboats often had a wheel in the back. The engine would turn the wheel. This moved the steamboat forward. Captains steered the steamboats from a little house on the roof of the cabin. They had to be watchful of objects in the river.

Shreve Adapts the Steamboat

John Fitch made the first successful steamboat. But it could only float in deep water. The Mississippi was not deep. This problem was fixable though. Henry Shreve adapted the steamboat for the Mississippi River. First, Shreve made the steamboats able to float in shallow water. Next, he used a high-pressure steam engine. This made the steamboat faster. Finally, he added a tall upper deck. Shreve’s steamboat was the model for all other Mississippi steamboats.
The Golden Age of Steamboats

When steamboats first began to work the Mississippi, they were slow. Then steamboats got faster. People used them more. In 1834 there were about two hundred packets on the river. Twenty years later, there were about 1,000. The packet became the best way to travel the Mississippi for the next fifty years.

Mark Twain wrote a book called Life on the Mississippi. It was about his days as a steamboat captain. Sometimes Twain made steamboat travel sound nice. Yet life on a steamboat could be hard. If the captain was careless, it could be a risky way to travel. The captain had to be careful on moonless nights when it was hard to see.

The End of an Era

At first, steamboats were all over the Mississippi River. Then the railroad came along. Trains were much faster. Trains became the most acceptable way to travel. Finally, by 1920, the steamboat had all but died out. It was the end of the steamboat era.

A Steamboat for Every Occasion

There were different types of steamboats. Towboats pushed barges on the river. Boats called “packets” carried goods and people. There were even showboats, which people used to hold parties.

The End of the Pony Express

On October 24, 1861, after nineteen months of service, the Pony Express came to an end. On that day the Pacific Telegraph Line was completed. Important information that had to be sent in letters could now be sent through a wire. News from one side of the continent could reach the other in seconds. Men no longer needed to ride horses over the dangerous 2,000-mile trail to deliver letters. But Americans would never forget the service these men provided for the country.

How Telegraphs Work

A telegraph operator taps out a message using Morse code, a system of dashes and dots. This message is sent as an electronic signal through a wire. The person on the other end receives the signal and decodes the message.

The Turtle and the Box of Riches

Long ago there was a young fisherman’s helper sitting on a dock. As he waited for his boat to head out for the day, he heard a group of children laughing under the dock. He peeked down and saw them teasing and pushing a small turtle.

“Leave that turtle alone!” the boy shouted and jumped down. The children quickly ran away. The boy picked up the turtle.

“Thank you,” the turtle said.

The boy jumped. “You can talk?”

“Yes,” the turtle said. “I am a very powerful turtle in my land. Your act was an inspiration. I want to reward you for your kindness. Go to sleep tonight, and when you wake up, you will be in a wonderful place.”

The turtle swam out to sea. The boy went to bed that night in disbelief. Yet, the next morning he woke up in a beautiful palace.

“Welcome to our home under the sea,” the turtle greeted him.

The turtle took the boy through the underwater palace. Large windows showed many types of fish and plant life. Gold walls and mirrored ceilings shined brightly. The boy met all of the friendly turtles that lived in the palace. Later that day, they had a big feast, and the boy ate more than he had ever eaten before.
As night came the boy asked to return to his home.

“Thank you so much for all you have shown and given me,” he said. “I have a lot of admiration for your home, but I must return to my home before morning. I have to work on a fishing boat and cannot afford to miss a day’s pay.”

“I understand,” the turtle said calmly. “Take a rest after your big meal, my friend. When you wake up, you will be back in your bed. But before you go, take this box.”

The turtle handed the boy a box with two drawers. Then he gave him a key. He told him to open the box at home.

“Take this key,” he said. “Use it to open one of the drawers—either one—but do not ever open the other. You must promise.”

The boy promised and fell asleep on some pillows. When he woke up, he was in his bedroom. There was the box sitting next to him. He took the key and opened the top drawer. It was filled with gold and jewels! The boy was rich and knew he wouldn’t have to work again.

The boy was filled with appreciation but could not help but wonder about the second drawer. What if he had opened it first? Might he have found even greater riches? He opened the drawer but it was empty. Quickly he opened the first drawer again. The gold and jewels had turned to dust. Instead of a rich man he was just a fisherman’s helper once more.

Kyoto Frog and Osaka Frog

Two frogs lived in Japan. One frog was from Kyoto. The other was from Osaka. Each frog set out to see the other’s town. They met halfway between Osaka and Kyoto. Both were very tired. Neither knew if he could go on. Then Osaka Frog had an idea.

“We should help each other stand on our hind legs. That way we can look out at the towns we want to visit. Then we’ll know if we really want to keep walking,” Osaka Frog said. Each frog faced the town he wished to see. Then each pushed the other up on his hind legs. But when they did this, their underbellies faced the town they wanted to go to and their eyes faced back home.

“Kyoto looks just like Osaka!” said Osaka Frog.

“And Osaka looks just like Kyoto!” said Kyoto Frog.

Each decided to go home rather than travel to a town that looked exactly like home. So each went home, not knowing that Kyoto and Osaka were as different as two cities could be.

Evidence is details and examples from a text that support a writer’s ideas. The student who wrote the paragraph below found text evidence that shows how the author uses details about events and other characters to share what the narrator thinks about the fisherman’s helper.

Topic sentence  →  In “The Turtle and the Box of Riches,” the author uses what the boy and the turtle do and say to share the narrator’s point of view. At the beginning of the story, fisherman’s helper saves the turtle. The narrator thinks helping animals is important. Then the turtle rewards the boy. The narrator thinks that acts of kindness should be rewarded. I read that at the end of the story, the narrator thinks the boy is still good, but he makes a mistake. The author uses what the boy does to show that the narrator thinks he is a good person. I agree with the narrator because the boy helped the turtle.

Madeleine had many ______________, such as singing and dancing. However, she liked acting the most. There was nothing she enjoyed more than being on stage in front of an ______________ and performing in a play. If all went well, the lead role in the school play would surely be hers. Getting the part would be a great ______________.

On the day of the audition, Madeleine was ready. She knew her lines by heart and had a lot of ______________ that she would get the lead role.

“I’m so excited!” said her best friend, Helen. “I can’t wait to be in the play!”

“I want the lead role,” said Madeleine. She got up on stage for the audition. Somehow, she couldn’t remember her lines! Madeleine’s face turned red, she started sweating, and she felt more ______________ than ever before. She said she was sorry and ______________ to her teacher. “I don’t remember my lines,” said Madeleine. She quickly walked off the stage.

“What’s the matter?” asked Helen.

“I forgot my lines!” said Madeleine. “Now I won’t be in the play! I wish no one had been watching me or paying ______________ at all.”

“Everyone knows you’re talented,” said Helen. “You just made one mistake. It’s okay. I think that you will still be in the play no matter what.”

Madeleine understood what Helen meant. She ______________ it would be fun to be on stage with her best friend Helen, even if she didn’t get the lead role.

Painting From Memory

Few people know of Damyang, South Korea, but I think it is impossible to find a place more beautiful. It is known for its bamboo forests. When I was younger, I spent much time in the forests painting pictures of the bamboo. Painting is one of my talents.

I lived in Damyang until last year when my family moved to New York. My mother, a scientist, was asked to come work here. “There are no bamboo forests in New York,” I said. “There is nothing to paint in New York.”

“Bae,” she said, “that is nonsense. You will find many things to see and paint there. You will see.”

I was unsure. “But I will miss home,” I said.

“Then you must paint pictures of your favorite places,” she said. “They will make you feel at home even in New York.”

So when we moved, I brought my forest paintings with me. New York was not easy at first, because I knew no one and spoke only imperfect English. Yet I didn’t feel homesick when I looked at my paintings of home. I soon found friends at school, too. Like me, they were artists, and we now paint in a group after school.

Last month someone moved into the apartment next to my family’s. “Come, Bae,” said my mother. “Let’s welcome our neighbor.” We crossed the hall and knocked on the door. An old woman who looked kind yet unhappy answered.
“We are your new neighbors,” my mother said to her. “I am Hana and this is my son, Bae.”

The woman smiled. “I am Varvara. Please come in.”

We learned that Varvara had moved from Vyborg, Russia, to be closer to her daughter. Still, she was sad to leave her home.

“I am so homesick it is unbearable,” Varvara said. She laughed, but I could tell she was sad. Varvara told us so much about Vyborg. I could picture her home in my head.

When I came home from school the next day, an ambulance was leaving our building, and I asked my mother why.

“It's Varvara. She misses her home so much that she has become ill. I hope she can get used to living here. Try not to worry.”

I had to do something for Varvara. I had been in her situation before. I had missed my home so much it hurt. But at least I had my paintings of home. She didn’t even have that. Unless…

A few days later I heard Varvara on the stairs. I cracked the door to see her. She looked better but still sad. When she got to her door she gasped. Propped against the door was my gift to her: a painting of Vyborg. I had painted it from her memories.

I closed the door as she began to cry. At first I was worried that she didn’t like the painting. But later she told me that those were tears of joy. I knew just how she felt.

Class by the Pond

Fumiko’s class was about to have a quiz about the life cycle of a frog. She was surprised that her class was so worried. She knew lots about frogs since she often watched them by the school pond. Then she had an idea.

“How can we have class by the pond tomorrow?” Fumiko asked as she pointed out the window.

“Why do you ask?” replied Ms. McNally.

“The frog eggs are starting to hatch. Maybe going to the pond and studying the tadpoles will help us learn more about them,” Fumiko said.

Adaptations: Grizzly and Polar Bears

Every animal has adaptations. These are special ways that a body works or is made. Not all birds eat the same things. Their beaks have different shapes. Some fish that live at the bottom of the ocean glow in the dark. Mammals live all over the world, so they need to have different skills and body shapes. Giraffes have long tongues. They use them to pull leaves off the tops of trees. Jackrabbits have wide feet to run across sand.

These things help animals be as effective as they can be. This means that they can do the best job possible of finding food and raising offspring. Adaptations are very important for keeping all animals alive and able to reproduce, or have offspring.

Similarities

Mammals have adapted to live in different parts of the world. Bears live all over the world. Grizzly bears live in North America. Polar bears live inside the Arctic Circle. In many ways they are the same. They are very large animals. They can weigh more than 1,500 pounds. Both kinds of bears have toes with claws they cannot retract. This means bears cannot pull their claws inside. They can stand on their hind legs. They can even sit up, as if they were sitting in a chair! And all bears have rounded ears.
Differences

Grizzly bears and polar bears have adapted to conditions in the different places they live. Polar bears’ fur is white. They can blend in with the ice and snow in the Arctic Circle. They can sneak up on prey without being seen. They also have a layer of blubber, or fat, over four inches thick. This helps keep them warm even though the air temperature can be –80°F. Their paws have fur on the bottom. This protects them from the ice and snow.

Grizzly bears do not live in the ice and snow. Their fur is brown. This helps them blend in with the trees and rocks in their environment, or where they live. Their claws are longer than a polar bear’s. Polar bears eat only meat. Grizzlies are omnivorous. They are just as happy eating fish as they are eating berries. They use their claws to catch fish. They also use them to dig in the ground for roots or insects. These bears also have a large hump of muscle over their shoulders. This makes their front legs very strong. It also helps them run quickly in order to catch prey.

Bears are only one kind of animal, and as you can see, where they live greatly affects what they are like. Adaptations are very important to bears, and they are important to every other kind of animal. Adaptations are what make each kind of bear unique.

The Monarch Migrations

Monarch butterflies live all over the United States. They migrate south each fall to warmer climates. Some fly all the way from Canada to Mexico. Monarchs migrate to adapt to changing temperatures. In the fall, temperatures in the north get cooler, and there are fewer flowers on plants. Monarchs cannot survive very cold winter weather and need flowering plants for food. They move to warm areas in the south where there is food.

History of Human Flight

Wanting to Fly Like Birds

Humans have always wanted to fly. But it took a long time for them to learn how to do it. At first, they tried to copy birds. They made wings out of wood. They attached the wings to their arms and tried to fly. But birds and humans do not have the same muscles. So the wings did not work.

The first big step toward human flight was the kite. The kite was first made in China in 400 B.C. Some used kites for fun. Others used them to test the weather. Some people wanted to make flying objects that could carry people. So they made balloons and gliders.

Hot Air Balloons

The first hot air balloon was a silk bag. The bag was filled with smoke from a fire. The hot air made the balloon lighter than the air around it. Because of this, the bag rose into the sky. People attached a basket to the bag. Soon, they began to use it to travel.

Gliders

The next big step in human flight was the glider. A glider does not float like a balloon. It falls to earth. But it falls so slowly that it stays in the air a long time. Gliders are easier to control than balloons. With gliders people could fly where they wanted.
Several inventors helped improve the glider. George Cayley made a new wing shape. He also wanted to make the glider more stable. That’s why he added a tail. Otto Lilienthal made a glider that could fly far. Sam Langley focused on ways to power the flight. He put an engine on the glider.

Really Flying

Balloons and gliders made it possible for people to fly. But they did not let people travel very far. Octave Chanute studied all of the texts he could find about human flight. He wrote it all in a book. Two brothers from Ohio read the book. Their names were Wilbur and Orville Wright. Octave’s book convinced them that they could make a flying machine.

The Wright brothers were great thinkers. First they did tests with balloons and kites. Then they learned about wind. They made a glider that worked well in any type of wind. Then they worked on an engine. It had to be strong. After five years of study, they used all their knowledge to make a “Flyer.” At 10:35 a.m. on December 17, 1903, the Wright brothers tested their new Flyer. It worked! Orville Wright flew 120 feet in twelve seconds. Humans had learned to fly at last!

How Rockets Move

A rocket is filled with fuel. When the fuel burns, gas leaves the back of the rocket. This gas moves at a very high speed. It has a lot of force. The rocket then moves forward using a basic law of nature. This law says that every action has an equal and opposite reaction. This means that the force of the moving gas has an opposite reaction. When the gas leaves the back of the rocket, it pushes the rocket in the opposite direction. This makes the rocket move forward at a very high speed.

Helga’s Aunt Gerta invited her to go hiking. Aunt Gerta hiked all the time in the canyon near her house. She even took pictures as she hiked the trails. Helga always enjoyed looking at the photographs of trees, birds, and even looking bugs that she had never seen before.

Helga was very excited about going hiking in the canyon. The last time she had done something was a nature walk she took in the field behind her house. But that was hardly as daring and exciting as a hike in a canyon. Helga remembered one of her favorite stories about a explorer who had been brave enough to climb Mount Everest. The canyon wasn’t exactly Mount Everest, but it was a start.

There was a knock on the door. Helga ran to answer it, with her mother close behind. It was her aunt. “Are you ready for our adventure, Helga?” asked Aunt Gerta.

“More than you know!” said Helga. “Let me grab my backpack!”

“Your backpack is on the couch,” said Helga’s mother. “The summer sun is already shining brightly so it will be hot on the trails. I put two bottles of cold water and some apple slices in there for you.”

“Thanks, Mom!” said Helga. Then she ran to join Aunt Gerta for their hiking adventure.

Why I Run

The first marathon I ever saw was years ago with my grandma.
We stood out on the Boston streets and marveled at the number of feet.
The runners were a rumbling herd, except for a few—like the swiftest birds who shot out alone to run their races with determination carved into their faces.
Motorboats speeding over gray water,
these runners would inspire anyone’s daughter.
That was the day I made the decision—
the bounce in my steps clarified my vision.
I went home that day and laced up my shoes and although my feet started out as one big bruise I’ve run in every Boston Marathon since and now I’m so strong I don’t even wince and now I’m so strong I don’t ever wince.

Evidence is details and examples from a text that support a writer’s opinion. This student wrote an opinion about whether or not the author gives enough details in a poem to help figure out the theme.

Topic sentence
In “Why I Run,” the author shares details about running that help me figure out that people can be inspired to try new things. At the beginning of the poem, the narrator is watching a marathon. She feels inspired. I read that she thought the runners were like the swiftest birds, and they would inspire anyone’s daughter. The narrator makes a decision to run. She has been running in every Boston Marathon since. The author’s details help me figure out that the theme of the poem is that we can all be inspired to try new things by other people.

Otomo Otomo Spins Gold

It is not easy to be a Japanese gnome. Nothing in the world is made to fit my size. That’s one problem. Another problem is that everyone thinks that I am bad. Sometimes I play tricks on people. But that is rarely the case. I’ll tell you a story and then you can decide for yourself.

I was out for a walk, taking in the scenery, and I heard the unmistakable sound of a young woman crying. So I climbed the wall, brick by giant brick, up to the window. She told me that she had a big problem. She needed to turn a bale of hay into a string made of gold, using a spinning wheel—not just once, but every night for five nights. If she couldn’t, a rich king would make her leave the kingdom.

It just so happens that spinning straw into gold is my specialty. It is one of the perks of being a magical being. We all get something we are very good at. This is mine. So we made a deal. I would spin gold for her. All she had to do was guess my name. (It is Otomo Otomo.) She got three tries each of the five nights. If she couldn’t guess it, then she’d come to live with me and my sisters. It seemed like a good deal to me. She seemed confident, so I shook her hand. Then I took the straw back to my house.
The next night, I brought her gold, and she was overjoyed. She made terrible guesses about my name: Norman, Takemura, and Pete. I thought it would be very nice to have someone tall around to help clean the top of my bookshelf. I thought she would be very comfortable among my sisters and me in the forest.

So the next three nights happened in much the same way. I took her straw home, sat and sang my spinning songs, made her gold, and brought it back. Every night she made uninformed, wild guesses at my name. They were hard to listen to, since they were so bad. Really? She thought my name was Sylvester? No parent would name a son Sylvester.

So on the fifth and final night, I returned with the gold. She looked less defeated. She almost looked relieved. I started to get nervous, but I didn’t want her to see that. I put the gold down, and asked, “What is my name?” She made her first two guesses: Roy and Yoshida. My tiny heart leaped at the promise of her company. But then she smiled and said, “Otomo Otomo. That is your name.”

When I asked her how she knew my name, she told me that she heard me singing my songs the night before. My spinning songs all include my name. So I went home alone. You see? I am not cruel or mean. It was just a deal we made that ended badly for me. And there will always be someone who needs my help. Maybe you do. How about it? What do you need?

The Dragon in the Apple Orchard

Once upon a time, an old man lived near an apple orchard. So much fruit grew in the orchard that the old man was able to get all the food he needed from it. In fact, years of getting his food so easily had made him lazy. It was fall and the apples were ripe, but the old man didn’t feel like doing the work. “Why should I pick them now?” he thought. “They’ll be there when I need them.”

But one day the old man awoke to a terrible sight. A dragon had settled down right in the middle of the orchard and was eating the apples! The old man was afraid. “If that dragon eats all of my apples, what will I have to eat?” he thought as he looked on.

After a little while, the dragon fell asleep. The old man thought, “This is my chance!” He crept out to the orchard, picked all the apples he needed, and hurried home. “I will pick these sooner next year,” he thought. “I’m not the only one who wants them!”

Write About Reading: Write an Analysis

Evidence is details and examples from a text that support a writer’s ideas. The student who wrote the paragraph below found evidence to show how details support a character’s point of view.

In “Otomo Otomo Spins Gold,” the author gives many details about what Otomo Otomo thinks about the deal he makes with a woman. At the beginning of the story, Otomo Otomo agrees to spin gold for a woman. They make a deal. Otomo Otomo thinks it is a good deal. But, when the deal doesn’t work out for him, Otomo Otomo is not sad. I read that he knows there will always be someone who needs his help. The author gives details about what Otomo Otomo thinks, and I figured out that he likes helping people. I agree because when things don’t work out once, it doesn’t mean they won’t work out all the time.

The Jar Garden

Jesse had been living in the city with her family for nearly three weeks. She had started school but so far she had only met Hank, the boy from next door. Every day they walked to and from school right past an old neglected playground. One Friday on their way home they stopped and gazed in. Jesse was from the country and could not bear to see the playground in this condition.

“Look at this run-down place,” she said, discouraged. “There’s litter all over. We can’t even play here.”

“We tried to clean it up a few years ago,” Hank said. “We even tried to create a garden. After a few weeks though, it was filled with garbage again so we had no choice but to desert it.”

Hank led Jesse to a small corner of the playground where trampled plants lay on the ground. A few old garden tools and a watering can were there. Hank could see a tear in Jesse’s eye.

“I really miss my home in the country,” she said. “There are so many open fields and space to run and play.”

Hank felt bad for Jesse and did not like the playground as it was either. They agreed to meet back there early the next morning.

Hank was already at the playground when Jesse showed up the next day. He had carefully gathered several jars into a pile.

“Hi Hank,” Jesse said. “Are you cleaning the playground?”
“Yes, people threw out all of these jars,” he said. “We should use them to start a new garden.”

Jesse agreed and they went to work picking up trash and collecting the remaining jars. They peeled the labels and cleaned out the jars. As the day went on, some of Hank’s friends walked by and saw what they were doing. Hank introduced them to Jesse.

“Nice to meet you,” Jesse said shyly, and continued working.

“I’m Katie,” one of Hank’s friends said. “We see that you’re trying to fix up the old garden. Can we help?”

Jesse could see that the playground and garden were important to them too. They all pitched in to clean the playground. Then they worked in the garden. They filled the clean jars with soil. Then they inserted seeds that Jesse got from her mother. They lined up the jars in a row and watered them.

“Let’s meet here every day,” Hank said proudly. “We’ll guarantee it stays clean this time.” They all agreed and went home.

Jesse’s new friends made her feel welcome, and she wanted to do something nice to thank them for all of their hard work.

The next Monday they all walked to school together. As they passed the playground, they noticed that Jesse had rearranged the jars to spell out the word Welcome.

“What a great way to enter the playground!” Hank said.

They were all very thankful for their new place to spend time.

Author’s Point of View
Read the passage. Use the ask and answer questions strategy to check your understanding of important details in the passage.

True Teamwork

We try to predict, or know, about emergencies before they happen. They can come as a surprise though. Even if we can’t predict, we can prepare. In an emergency, it is best for people to work as a team. When people work together they are more prepared. They can help more people than if they were alone and unprepared.

On August 29, 2005, Hurricane Katrina struck Louisiana. It was one of the strongest storms to hit that area in the last 100 years. The high winds, heavy rains, and extreme floods destroyed homes, buildings, land, and roads on the Gulf Coast. Some people lost all they had. They lost their homes, clothes, cars, and more. These people needed help. Teams were formed to give relief, or help, to them. These teams came together to give food and shelter. This was a hard time for the victims, or people hurt by the storm. To find food and shelter on their own would have been hard.

We do not always know when a storm, flood, or other event is coming. Even so, there are teams who are always ready to help. When something like Katrina happens, they know what to do. They know how to get food, water, and even doctors to people. It is their job to work as a team and give help all over the world.
It is good to know that there are teams who can help after a disaster. However, your family should still be prepared. It is important to know how to work as a team in an emergency. It can be as simple as talking to your neighbors. All of you can work together to be prepared.

Working as a team is encouraging and gives you hope. You all have the same goal. It might be a lot of work to prepare for an emergency alone. If you know your neighbors are working with you, it can make you feel better. You can all work together to be prepared. What should you do? One important thing is that everyone has a “Go Kit.” This is a kit that has essential or important things you need to survive. It can have food, water, and flashlights in it. What if you forget to pack a flashlight? You might need one in an emergency. If your neighbors have packed one, they can help you. This is just one small benefit from working as a team.

Nobody knows for sure when an emergency might happen. It could be today or years from now. Perhaps you might never need to use your Go Kit. Yet knowing that you and your neighbors are ready and can work as a team makes everyone feel better. People feel more secure working as a team in an emergency than working alone.

Evidence is details and examples from a text that support a writer’s ideas. The student who wrote the paragraph below found evidence to show how details support the author’s point of view.

In “True Teamwork,” the author thinks being prepared and working together during emergencies is important. The author explains that in an emergency, it is best for people to work as a team. I also read that working together as a team is encouraging and gives people hope. The text also states that everyone feels better knowing that they are ready and can work together as a team in emergencies. There are many details that show that the author thinks working together and being prepared are good things during emergencies. I agree with the author’s point of view because being ready and working as a team makes me feel safer and ready in an emergency.

Write a paragraph about a text you have read. Find text evidence to show details that support the author’s point of view. Then explain whether or not you agree with the author’s point of view and why.

Write a topic sentence:

Hiram Revels – The First African American Senator

Hiram Rhodes Revels was born in North Carolina in the year 1827. Through his whole life he was a good citizen. He was a great teacher and leader. And he was always fair. He was so well respected that he became the first African American to serve in the U.S. Senate.

A Hard Time for African Americans

Revels was born during a hard time for African Americans. African Americans were treated badly. Most African Americans in the South were enslaved. Revels grew up as a free African American, or freedman, however. As a freedman, Revels could make his own choices.

Still, the laws in the South were unfair toward all African Americans. They had to work hard jobs. They were not allowed to go to school. Though it was not legal, some freedmen ran schools for African American children. As a child, Revels was sent to one of these schools. He worked hard to become highly educated. He was unable to go to college in the South. So he traveled far from home. He went to college in northern states.
Preaching and Teaching

After college, Revels became the pastor of a church. He was a great speaker. He was also a great teacher. Revels knew many people did not want African Americans to be educated. But Revels was very brave. He traveled all over the country. He taught African Americans. He knew that this would make them good citizens.

The First African American Senator

Revels moved to Natchez, Mississippi, in 1866. By this time, slavery had been banned. There were many newly freed African Americans. These freedmen voted for Revels to be in the Mississippi State Senate. From there, he was elected to the U.S. Senate. He was the first African American to become a U.S. senator. It was a great achievement!

In the Senate, Revels tried to be fair to all the people in his state. He disliked rules that were unfair for African Americans. So he tried to change them. He made it legal for African Americans to work in the Navy’s shipyards. He challenged rules that kept African Americans apart from other Americans. But he was also fair to people of all colors. Even though the South lost during the Civil War, Revels did not want white southern soldiers to be punished.

Hiram Revels helped many people throughout his life. He helped people learn. As a senator, he helped the country progress. He was truly a good citizen!

Jane Addams’s Early Years

Jane Addams always knew that she wanted to help people. However, after she finished school in Illinois, she was not sure how best to plan her life’s work. She attended medical school, but she did not finish. When she took a trip to Europe, Addams visited Toynbee Hall in London, England. Toynbee Hall had been founded to help poor and homeless people. It offered classes and activities. This community center gave her ideas for a center that she would later found in Chicago: Hull House.

Answer the questions about the text.

The Electric Car

Have you ever seen a person plug in a car? Some cars use electricity to run instead of gasoline. There are many good reasons to buy an electric-powered car. But there are also some downsides to keep in mind.

Electric Car History

An electric car runs on an electric motor. The car uses a foot pedal to move just like any other car. But it uses a battery to power the motor, not gas. Common household electricity is used to recharge the electric car battery.

Electric engines got their start in the 1830s. For years they were improved. Better batteries were made. By the late 1800s the cars were used by many people in the United States.

The electric cars were easy to drive. Drivers did not have to change gears. Gas-powered cars needed a hand crank to get started. Electric cars did not.

Many people used electric cars in cities. The cars drove smoothly. They made little noise. They also didn’t have the smell of gas cars. Electric cars were even used as New York taxis in 1897.

Then Henry Ford made the gas-powered Model T in 1908. It ran better than the old gas cars. It was cheaper to produce than electric cars. It ended the reign of the electric car.
Pros and Cons

There are many reasons for people to buy electric cars today. They are good for the planet. They do not let pollution out into the air. Gas-powered cars use a tailpipe to let pollution escape.

Electric cars don’t need the upkeep that gas cars need. No oil changes. No trips to the gas station. There are fewer parts to an electric engine. This often means fewer problems.

There are a few drawbacks to an electric-powered car though. One thing is that it has to be charged. Charging times can vary. A full charge can take up to a few hours.

Most electric cars can only go so far on one electric charge. A gasoline car can go farther on a full tank of gas. And there are plenty of gas stations around. Yet, there are not many places to recharge an electric car.

Electric car batteries may also need to be replaced. They cost a lot of money. They are also big and heavy.

The electric car has been around a long time. The future is bright if car makers keep working to make it better.

Energy from Recycled Plastic

Some kinds of plastic can only be recycled a certain number of times. After that, these plastics cannot be used for anything and must be taken to a landfill. Luckily, scientists have recently performed experiments which prove that we can burn this useless plastic to create energy. The next step is to put this process into practice so that power plants around the country are able to use these plastics as fuel.

The Search for New Energy

Today, finding new sources of energy is of the highest importance. We can now add plastic to wind, sun, and water as an alternative source of energy. But even as we work to build power plants that burn recycled plastic as fuel, we must continue to look for new energy sources to replace dirty fossil fuels.

Prometheus Brings Fire to Humans

Cast:
1  Narrator | Prometheus | Zeus | Human 1 | Human 2
8  Scene 1
10  Setting: Mount Olympus, the home of the ancient Greek gods.
20  Zeus sits on a throne in the middle of the stage. There is a 34  fireplace with a roaring fire in it to his left. Prometheus enters.
46  Zeus: Prometheus! Welcome to my throne room! I trust everything is good.
55  Prometheus: I’m afraid not, Lord Zeus. I have been to Earth 69  and lived among the people. They are miserable. They live in caves and eat raw meat. When winter comes, they die of cold and 93  starvation. I would like to ask you to share fire with them.
105  I believe it would help them keep warm and cook their meat.
117  Zeus: Absolutely not! If humans have fire, they might become 127  strong and wise like the gods. They could force us from our 139  kingdom. I am happy to keep them cold and uninformed. That 150  way we gods can rule the world unthreatened and happy.
160  Prometheus: (under his breath) But I am not a god. I am a
173  Titan. If you will not help them, I will! (he exits)
Scene 2

Narrator: (Voice over) Prometheus wanted to do something to help humans. One day, walking along the seashore, he found a reed sticking out of the water. It was soft and dry on the inside—perfect for carrying fire. So Prometheus traveled to the end of the earth, where the morning sun lives, and touched his reed to the fires that light the sun. Then he quickly returned to his homeland, so he could share the fire with the humans he knew.

Setting: Prometheus is standing outside of a cave with some humans dressed in animal furs.

Prometheus: Look! (he touches his reed to a pile of sticks and a fire lights) I have brought you the secret to your empowerment! This is the fire that will change your life!

Human 1: What do we do with it?

Prometheus: You can use it to cook meat or keep warm. It will let you leave your caves to experience the world. When you are warm and well fed, it is much easier to do anything you want!

Human 2: Why would you do this for us?

Prometheus: I know how hard it is to live someplace that doesn’t seem to want you. It is important to me that, given the chance, I can help you become the creatures I know you must become. I only ask that you also help those less fortunate when you have the chance.

Narrator: The humans agreed to Prometheus’s request. Then they began the slow process of bringing about a world in which they could live in happiness without suffering.

Scene 3: The Fall of Icarus

Daedalus and his son, Icarus, have escaped from the island of Crete where the king had held them captive. They are flying above the sea, using the wings Daedalus has built.

DAEDALUS: Stay close to me, Icarus. We have a long way to fly! Be safe.

ICARUS: But Father, when will I ever have another chance to see the sun so close?

DAEDALUS: If you fly too high, the sun will melt the wax holding your wings together!

ICARUS: Don’t worry, I’ll pay close attention. If the wax starts to melt, I’ll come down.

DAEDALUS: If the wax starts to melt, it will be too late! Come down now!

ICARUS: But you should see the view from up here! I can see every island in the sea! What an incredible sight! The wax in Icarus’s wings begins to melt; his wings no longer work properly, and he struggles to stay in the air.

DAEDALUS: Shouting. Icarus! Your wings!

Evidence is details and examples from a text that support a writer’s ideas. The student who wrote the paragraph below found evidence to show how the author uses dialogue, setting, and stage directions to tell a story.

In “Prometheus Brings Fire to Humans,” the author uses dialogue, scenes, and stage directions to tell a story. The dialogue, scenes, and stage directions tell me what is happening in the play. Each scene tells part of the story in time order. In Scene 1, Zeus and Prometheus are talking, and Prometheus says something under his breath. This stage direction tells me that he has a plan and does not want Zeus to hear it. From the dialogue, I can tell that they do not agree. The author uses dialogue, scenes, and stage directions to tell about the characters and the events in a play.

Warm Enough for Wheat

I live on a farm in the Middle Colonies. Living here is what I have always known. I was the first of my family born here. My parents and two sisters came here from England, though. I often ask Father what life was like before I was born. He’s always so proud to tell me. My family was brave to leave all they knew to start a new life here. Strangely enough, it was the weather that helped my family decide where they would live in this new land.

My father likes adventure. Mother says that if he isn’t exploring, Father is at sixes and sevens and he doesn’t know what to do with himself! So when my Uncle Charles moved to New England, Father knew it was time for a change, too. Moving to New England would mean adventure and a new life.

When my family came to New England, they lived with Uncle Charles for a few months. Uncle Charles had become a fisherman in New England. Since it was so cold in the winter, it was hard to have a farm. Many people there were fishermen because it was more reliable for them to fish than to grow food. They could trade the fish for other food. Trying to grow crops in the rocky soil that was covered in snow for months at a time was difficult.
Father tried his hand at fishing, but he wasn’t much of a success. He found that he didn’t like being on the boat! He must not have had sea legs. The more he thought about it, the more he knew he wanted to be a farmer. He had heard people from the Middle Colonies speak of their farms. It sounded like the life he had dreamt of.

After sleeping on it and giving it a lot of thought, my parents bought a farm in the Middle Colonies. The Middle Colonies had a warmer climate than New England. Because of the milder weather, farming was less difficult. For the next three years, they grew grains on the farm. In fact, the Middle Colonies are called the Bread Basket. That is because of all the grains grown here. Having a successful grain farm north in New England would not have been possible. Thanks to the warmer weather farther south, my family had found the life they wanted.

The farm did quite well. My mother even opened a bakery in town. Not long after that, I was born. I’ve been helping on the farm and in the bakery ever since I can remember. The weather sure had an effect on where my family decided to live. We couldn’t have had the same life farther north. My family found adventure, a new home, and a family business. Our life is the best life I can think of—it takes the cake! I know my parents made the right choice.

Tigris River Valley Boy

The hot sun shone down over the dry valley. Ilulu had been digging for hours and was quite tired. He stopped to take a short rest and looked out over the canals stretching across the valley. Work was coming along well, but there was still much to do before the rainy season arrived. If canals were finished on time, the people of the valley could use the water to grow crops. But if the canals were not finished, the river would flood and wash away the crops.

John Glenn

Many people admire John Glenn as an American hero. He was a pilot, an astronaut, and a U.S. senator. When he was 77 years old, he became the oldest person ever to fly in space.

Serving His Country

John Glenn was born in Ohio in 1921. When he was 20 years old, World War II broke out. Glenn signed up for the army. Yet he was not called to serve. This was a problem for Glenn. He wanted to serve his country. So Glenn joined the navy. There, he became a pilot. As a pilot, Glenn fought in World War II and the Korean War. Later, he joined the marines.

First Place

John Glenn kept flying after the war. He flew a plane faster than the speed of sound. That’s more than 768 miles per hour! He flew the plane all the way across the country. Glenn was the first person to do this. That’s why he was picked to be in the U.S. space program. The program is called NASA. At the time, there were only six other astronauts in NASA.

Glenn trained for months. On February 20, 1962, Glenn flew in a ship all the way around Earth. He was the first American to orbit Earth.
Serving in the Senate

John Glenn had become a famous astronaut. Still, he had another goal. He wanted to be a U.S. senator from Ohio. In 1964 Glenn campaigned for the U.S. Senate. Sadly, he had an accident and hit his head. He was badly injured. He could not keep running for the senate. Yet Glenn did not give up. He tried again. He used his skills as an orator, or public speaker. As a result, he won a senate seat in 1974.

John Glenn served in the senate from 1974 until 1998. During this time, he tried to stop the spread of nuclear weapons. Senator Glenn wrote a law. The law tries to stop people from getting and making nuclear weapons. It also gives rewards to countries that help in this effort.

One More Flight

John Glenn was 77 years old when he left the senate. He was not done serving, though. NASA wanted to find out how space travel affected older people. So they asked Glenn to help. Glenn agreed. In 1998 he flew one final time. He flew around Earth for nine days. He is the oldest person ever to fly in space. John Glenn is a real hero.
A. Reread the passage and answer the questions.

1. Reread paragraph 2 on the first page of the passage. What problem did John Glenn face?

2. How did signing up for the navy solve Glenn’s problem?

3. Reread paragraph 1 on the second page of the passage. What problem did John Glenn face? What was the solution?

Bessie Coleman

In Chicago, Bessie worked with her brother Walter in a barbershop but still wanted more in life. When her brother John came home after World War I, he teased her, telling her how much better French women were. They had real careers; some even flew airplanes! After hearing this, Bessie decided to become a pilot. As an African American woman, though, she was unable to get a pilot’s license in America. With friends’ support, she was finally able to enroll in a pilot course in France.

Bessie Coleman received her pilot’s license in France.

The Disappearance of Bees

Take a walk outside in nature. It may not be long before you see bees buzzing around a flower. This is a sight that most people are used to seeing. But now there is concern for bees. People are worried because the number of honey bees has been going down. And no one is sure why.

What Is Happening and Why

Studies show that bee colonies in the United States are vanishing. This is a problem that is being called Colony Collapse Disorder. It was first noticed in 2006 by beekeepers. Large groups of bees living together had fewer bees. Since then, nearly one-third of the colonies have gone away.

So, what is the cause? The answer is still not clear. Plant sprays may have a role in making the bees sick. Chemicals are often sprayed on plants to keep certain bugs from harming the plants. Newer sprays may be bothering the bees.

There are other possible causes. New unknown germs, or tiny living things that can cause disease, may also play a part in getting bees sick. A lack of food and water is also a problem for bees. Too many bees in the hive also adds to the bees’ stress.
Why We Need Bees

Bees are important to us for many reasons. To start with, they play a big part in growing new plants. They carry a substance called pollen from one part of a plant’s flower to another part. The bees can also carry pollen to a new plant. This helps the plant to make seeds. More plants come from the seeds.

Bees carry out the same process, or series of actions, for many plants that farmers grow. A number of these plants, called crops, produce foods that we eat. Apples, carrots, and cherries are a few examples. Fewer bees mean farmers have fewer of these crops.

The bees also affect how many crops there are to buy and sell. Farmers sell the food they grow to stores. The stores sell the food to people. Without bees, buyers would have fewer crops to buy. Sellers would make less money.

Fewer bees would also mean less honey. Honeybees take sweet fluid called nectar from plants. They use this liquid to make honey in their hives. People collect honey. They use it to make foods and drinks sweet. Honey can become scarce, or hard to find, without honeybees.

So the next time you’re in your garden, think of the bees. Don’t put chemicals on your plants that could harm them. You will be happy you did.

What Good Are Mosquitoes?

Some people think mosquitoes are not very helpful animals. After all, most of us know mosquitoes because of their itching bite. But mosquitoes are an important part of the food chain. For example, dragonflies rely on mosquitoes to eat. Without a large mosquito population, dragonflies could not survive. If the number of dragonflies drops enough, animals that depend on dragonflies might not survive.
